Chandler, of Pennsylvania, were [illegible] Mayor of North Carolina, were [illegible] after some preliminary discussion, the meeting adjourned [illegible] ng, the 27th inst. [illegible] with 50 members [illegible] ding to adjournment, and [illegible] nominating ticket and [illegible] nal Convention, was accepted. It is [illegible] provided that the Whig Na[illegible] nomination of candidates for [illegible] ent of the United States, to be [illegible] n, on Wednesday, the 16th day of June next.

WILLIS P. MAYBURY, Chairman.

Secretaries.

☞ The [illegible] farmers have [illegible] pairing the [illegible] conditions [illegible] longer, will [illegible] ing it capital [illegible] able season [illegible] we are now quite cheering, and we [illegible] cheer courage will be [illegible] Maine [illegible] the great art.

The weather [illegible] been unusually favorable for the [illegible] ing interest. There was a very large [illegible] snow in the woods, and had there been [illegible] rains to have taken it off suddenly, the [illegible] would have been great; swollen, and [illegible] ed their banks and made the running [illegible] ficult. The sun has melted the snow [illegible] ough to keep the streams well supplied [illegible] logs have come along, and are coming [illegible] ishape. The shortly expected rains [illegible] ly bring them in without difficulty.

A Mechanic's College. The Scientific American states that a Convention of Mechanics will be held in Rochester, N. Y., on the 20th, to take measures for the establishment of a people's College, to be entirely free from sectarian influences. The object of the College is a complete and thorough education for the sons and daughters of our workingmen—men of toil—Practical mechanics, in combination with science, are to be thoroughly drilled into the students.

California Ice Trade. We notice by the San Francisco papers that the expedition to Sitka, (new Archangel) Russia, has resulted in the return of one of the "Pacific Ice Company's" vessels, (Baiqua Bachue) with 200 tons of "Crystal Lake" ice. The consequence was, a decline in price from 25 cents to 10 cents per pound at retail. This puts rather a "cooler" on the plan of supplying California with ice from New England.

☞ We learn that Ridley was not the person who cut the hose of Engine Co. No. 3, at the Steam Mill fire, but at the State Street fire. The person who cut the hose at the Steam Mill fire has not yet been arrested, but he will probably be brought to light.

☞ The steamer Gold Hunter has been purchased by the United States Government for the Coast Survey, and after being thoroughly refitted, has been named the Active. She sailed on the 10th of April from San Francisco, for the purpose of continuing the survey of the coast between San Francisco and San Diego.

☞ The Congressional District Whig Convention assembles at Hollowell-to-day, for the purpose of making nominations.

☞ William S. Derrick, Chief Clerk in the Department of State, died at Washington on Sunday last.

☞ Potatoes are now sold in Calais at 50 cents a bushel.

☞ We give our thanks to Carr & Cole Express for papers in advance of the Mail.

☞ The Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia North American makes the following confident prediction as to the result of the coming election.

"It is no secret in the decrees of fate, that Winfield Scott will be nominated for President by the Whig National Convention at Baltimore, and will be elected in November next by a vote North and South, and East and West, that will astound even his most sanguine supporters. In less than six months this prediction will be fulfilled or falsified. In the fullness of faith I abide the result; and if our Democratic friends are as bold on this subject, and will name any candidate on their side in opposition, they do have the chance of improving their fortunes by certifying their confidence."

Fire at New York.—The steam sugar refinery of E. H. Swift destroyed by fire on the 17th was insured for $250,000. The building was one of the largest of the kind in New York, and there was an unusually large stock of sugar on hand, a small portion of which only was saved. The loss is estimated at 375,000 dollars. The Journal of Commerce says:

"The burning sugar, illuminated the city over a wide extent, and attracted a myriad of small birds resembling swallows, which swarmed through the atmosphere. The light striking their white breasts, made the heavens appear to be filled with snow flakes."

Fire at Bath—Loss of Life.

Bath, May 19.

A two story dwelling house next north of the old Tontine House owned by John C. Tolman, was burned this morning at 5 o'clock. It was occupied by three families. So rapidly did the flames spread, that before the inmates could be got out three perished; one was a woman by the name of Harley, aged 45 years, and others children of Richard Globe, aged 9 and 7 years. Mercury.

☞ The following extracts from California papers give some particulars of the Indian troubles, which appear to be increasing:

The Klamath Indians, for a distance of 40 miles below the mouth of Scott river, have been for a long time very hostile and troublesome to the miners and packers.

At Happy Camp, which is situated 20 miles below Scad Valley, the miners passed a law among themselves, that no Indians should be allowed to come to that place; if they did they were to be shot instantly. When the Indian agent, McKee, passed up the river and formed a treaty with these Indians, the miners informed him of the law to which they had made for their protection against Indian depredations. Mr. McKee communicated this to the Indians. Last January an Indian from Scad Valley said he was not afraid to go down to Happy Camp, and flown he started, and the former had barely arrived there than he was shot dead while crossing the creek, near the camp.

Last week the Indians made propositions to fight the miners. The Scads started for Scott Valley, and the Indians sent word down to the Happy Camp miners that they were going to kill three of their men, for the one they had killed. The Happy Camp miners on hearing this came up to Long Bar, within four miles of the Indian ranch. Here they were joined by another party, and marched up in the night, and at early dawn surrounded the Indian rancheria. A number of the Indians slept out in the bushes and were shot.

They set fire to the ranch and smothered out the Indians. Those an Indian would break from the ranch they would shoot him down—in this way they shot forty Indians, and no one escaped from the ranchería. Out of these Indians had, eight balls shot through his body before he fell to the ground. Amongst all of the dead there was only one squaw found, and she was the Indian chief's daughter.

The San Diego Herald of April 1 gives the following intelligence from the Indians on the Colorado:

On the 11th ult. Major Hemblenton overtook Major Fitzgerald, with 80 men, with orders to proceed to the mouth of the Colorado, and ascertain whether the Yuma Indians had treated Lt. Arthur and party of seven men, hunting up some mules, were surprised and instantly killed by a large party of Indians armed with guns. The Indians, after possessing themselves of the mules and effects of the murdered party, amused themselves that night by parading in the camp of the Indians in great force, Major [illegible] determined on arresting a number of the [illegible] of the murder, and succeeded in [illegible] accomplished the [illegible] many difficulties. For [illegible] the troops were compelled to wade [illegible] deep. The whole affair was well [illegible] to the sagacity of Gregg. The [illegible] nothing, and the animal [illegible] sick, obliged to abandon, wandering animal in search [illegible]. The detachment of regulars that left [illegible] two weeks since, arrived at Camp Yuma [illegible] 26th ult. No one was acquainted with [illegible] of country in which our troops are [illegible] compelled to operate can form an idea of [illegible] hardships they will have to contend with. [illegible] dent that almost three months of mercy [illegible] supplies will be required to sustain our [illegible] ons. The Indians roam over the country [illegible] than 2000 square miles in extent, covered [illegible] with thickets so dense as only in Florida, intersected with innumerable rivers of all sizes, that renders it the easiest thing in the world for the Indians to avoid their foes.

[illegible] are six soldiers and one citizen, [illegible] stroyed who were herding the animals of Major Fitzgerald, just off from the camp by a body of [illegible] than 200 Indians, and killed, after which [illegible] Indians made an open attack on the camp, and were repulsed with the loss of four and [illegible] wounded.

The Indians continue to be very troublesome [illegible] Dorotio, and last week drowning Calder and [illegible] every day. About the 27th ult. a large party of them made an attack on Rancho Cornel, but did not succeed in carrying away any stock. Two were Generals Woods and Scott and a large number of members of Congress and other distinguished [illegible].

The Rev. Smith Pyne read the Episcopal service. The corpse was interred in the Congressional cemetery, to be hereafter removed to Quincy.

Fatal Quick Chamber's Elixir.—The Observatorian of April 21 has intelligence from the gold-seekers on Queen Charlotte's Island. A party left Oregon in the Exact, near the end of winter, on a prospection on the island. They visited a number of harbors around the Island before they found the one next which she could wash enough to pay. They made one start, and finding themselves out of two things—that there was gold there, but that they were not strong enough, nor suitably provided to secure it. The Indians are numerous and bold. The Island is represented as solid rock, with a little soil composed of decayed vegetation. The mountains are numerous and high, and many of them entirely bare. The party encountered very severe weather, plenty of rain and freezing nearly cold. They are nevertheless to return better provided to make another start.

Late and Interesting News from the West Indies.

By the arrival of the steamer Osprey at Boston, from Bermuda 6th inst., we have later news from the West Indies. Previous to the last mail, seven vessels had sailed from Bermuda for the United States, loaded with potatoes, and onions, the crops of which, raised [illegible] in this country, had been large.

A mate from Jamaica state that the small pox continued to rage on the North side of the Island. Its virulence was greatly diminished by the general constitution of the people, of which melancholy accounts are given. Many families, heretofore in prosperous circumstances, are now entirely destitute. The Kingston Journal says there will be a great falling off in the Sugar crop. At the East end of the Island it will be about normal.

At Demarara, the yellow fever was committing dreadful ravages. Two or three scenes from [illegible] had lost all their crews by it. Five [illegible] and seventy Coolies and 120 Portuguese had arrived upon the Island.

At Antigua the drought continued with great severity. Distress was beginning to be felt for want of water. The crops were suffering, and many of the cattle were dying.

St. Kitts the drought was also very severe.

At Martinique, a censorship of the press had been established by the French Government. Incendiaries, the only two newspapers upon the Island had been stopped, and advertising was prohibited.

At Guadaloupe state that the country torch was still spreading destruction and desolation in all parts of the Island. Fires were of daily occurrence, and it was with great difficulty that the large towns were preserved from destruction.

Advices from Cayenne state that none of the convicts from France sentenced to that Island had arrived, but preparations had been made for their reception. A ball given there in honor of Louis Napoleon proved to be a failure.

At Nassau, N. P., there was a story that Mr. Cabell was in London negotiating for a line of steamers between Nassau, New Orleans, Jamaica, St. Thomas and Turks Islands.

Funeral of Mrs. Adams.

Washington, May 18.

The funeral of Mrs. Adams, relict of John Q. Adams, took place this morning. The President and all the members of the Cabinet, with the exception of Mr. Webster, were present, as also Generals Scott and Smith and a large number of members of Congress and other distinguished persons.

The Rev. Smith Pyne read the Episcopal service. The corpse was interred in the Congressional cemetery, to be hereafter removed to Quincy.

CONGRESS.

WASHINGTON, May 17.

In the Senate.—The Senate agreed to adjourn over to Wednesday, in order to attend the funerals of Mrs. Adams.

Mr. Underwood introduced a bill changing the mode of compensation of members of Congress, allowing a salary of $2000 per annum, and 20 cents per mile for mileage on an air line, and deducting $10 per day for absence except in cases of sickness.

Mr. Cooper called for the report of the Engineer in Chief on the tests made by him of the different kinds of coal used in the Navy.

Several bills were passed, when the Senate took up the deficiency bill, and Mr. Borland rehashed his speech. Without taking a vote the Senate adjourned.

In the House.—Mr. Fowler of Massachusetts, offered a resolution that when the House adjourns it adjourn to meet to-morrow at 11 o'clock, in order that the members may attend the funeral of Mrs. Adams, the relict of Ex President Adams. The resolution was afterwards amended so as to adjourn over until Wednesday, and passed.

The House then went into Committee on the territorial bills.

Mr. Richardson, from the Committee on Territories, reported a joint resolution changing the name of St. Peter's River to that of Minnesota, being the original Indian name. It was passed.

The bill making the week set apart for the consideration of territorial business, various other reports were made, including one to run and establish the boundary of Texas and the Territory of the United States.

Mr. Preston King, of New York, took the floor and expressed his views on the compromise measures, and was listened to with marked attention.

Messrs. Calhun, Polk, and others, also took part in the debate.

The Committee rose without debating the bill through, and the House adjourned.

The Providence Journal says: The change in the editorial management of the Union, is understood to mean that the Democratic Convention will make no declaration which compromises. The Democrats are horrified lest the Whig Convention should not be sound upon this subject; yet they are remarkably careful to take no steps which shall make it inconvenient for Robert Rantoul, Chauncey F. Cleaveland, Preston King, and David Wilmot, to support the candidates of their party. There is a wonderful difference between what these candid gentlemen command to us, and what they practice themselves.

The Footsteps of Flora.

The month of May is said by the Poets to be the month of Flowers. It is the month of June, however, which wears the crown of Rose—Perhaps the long fast along, make up that season, so that nature seems to smile and [illegible] this part made warmer by the genial [illegible] the elements around him. Bright [illegible] Evening Stars, seem to [illegible] the darkest souls with something of the [illegible] Poetry and even the poor invalid, [illegible] sigh for health and the outcasts of world, [illegible] to think they have yet a Father and a [illegible] whose emblems of an eternal Spring [illegible] Blossom, on this inhabitable and [illegible] Earth.

If we were not to poetize, but to speak of one of the subjects of poetry—flowers—and that too, only in one aspect. We would suggest a very pleasant study for those who have time for rural walks. Many [illegible] of woods, [illegible] and [illegible] observe the succession of flowers [illegible] produced in a season—in one word, to watch the footsteps of Flora. She is constantly [illegible] year in tracing numerous [illegible] by numerous family. Several years since, it was part of our employments to pass daily over the same piece of ground. It was rocky and barren, besides a little stream, whose waters murmured along and whose banks were overhung with the cedar and the pine. From early spring to declining autumn, our path was the same; and usually we walked alone. Before the snow had disappeared, the trailing arbutus peered through the crumbling ice.

After a while some green plants began to come up around the winter, decayed leaves on the ground; then a little grass, and by and bye violets and blue bells, and little nameless flowers of the woods; and by and bye the columbine, and so on, one after another, through the year. There were fewer, more than two or three of these visitors at a time, and the ground seemed to retain its sterility—but as one disappeared another came, and Flora was continually passing by, with some of her attendant spirits. Then the manner in which they came and went, carried with it all the beauty of their dress, something sadly near the mutability of human life. One would be just dropping, another pulling its bright hues, and a third withering away, when others again would be peeping and blossoming into existance. So have we seen the little blossoms of Being—smiling upon surrounding friends, then drooping, withering and dead:—But we must not moralize here. All the season, Flora was passing along with her train, and day by day she interested, astonished and delighted us. We learned from her footsteps one of the great secrets of Nature—that it was by the continual succession that such a multiplicity, and such vast varieties was produced in the family of plants and flowers. They are continually coming and going.

The natural history of plants is a delightful subject of contemplation—but to be enjoyed, it must be studied amidst the works of Nature, in the roseate seasons of youth and spring. It must be pursued in company with no book of botany on hand, and with no purpose of preserving a museum of dried leaves for sterility. All must be done in a genial, natural spirit, with heart and mind in unison with the harmony of nature. Then the flowers will be grateful, the grass will be soft to the foot, and the heart will utter its song of praise, clothed in no form of words, but felt.

Liquor Law Vetoed.

BOSTON, May 19.

Gov. Boutwell has appended his veto to the Liquor Bill.

LATER.

BOSTON, May 19—7 P. M.

The Senate failed to pass the Liquor Bill by a two thirds vote, but a new bill was passed covering the main objection urged by the Governor, that it contravenes the secret ballot law. Gen. Wilson characterized the Governor's objection as a dishonest pretext.

An animated discussion took place in the Senate and much excitement prevails.

It is expected that the Governor will veto the new Bill even if it passes in its amended form, as the whole tenor of his veto message is in opposition to the Bill. The House this P. M. returned to the Senate the new Bill.

NOTICE TO THE DEAF AND HARD OF HEARING.—Dr. Whitman, Professor of the Eye and Ear Infirmary in Court st., Boston, is gaining great celebrity both at home and abroad, for his unparalleled success in the treatment of deafness and diseases of the eyes. We have seen a number of cases in which he has performed cures, and after a few operations was enabled to read the finest print. Also a man twenty-three years of age, who was born deaf, who has so far recovered that he can distinctly hear a watch tick three inches distant from his head. The artificial eyes which Dr. W. inserts are so natural that it would be difficult for the most critical to distinguish them from the natural eye. He has also invented an invisible ear trumpet, an article of inestimable value to those for whom they are designed.—Boston Journal.
